

RE: Petition 02-278, Indiana Telephone Privacy Law

Dear FCC Staff & Directors:

In regards to the Consumer Banking Association petition against the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law, DO NOT permit them to win. If I want to do business with an entity over the phone, I will call them or I will tell them to call me at specific times. My family and I have enjoyed the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law. Before we were on it, we would have between two to three calls every evening. That number doesn't include the companies that would leave voice mail messages for us. If you want to do anything to the Indiana Telephone Privacy Law, strengthen it so even less entities, phone solicitors are not legally allowed to disturb us. I believe the Bill of Rights states it quite clearly...Freedom to Happiness!! By the FCC allowing unwanted phone solicitors or business relation entities to call me when I don't want to talk to them, you are infringing on my right to happiness. This in my opinion is a direct violation to the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights corresponding to said constitution.

Sincerely,

Brent White
